Inside The Numbers

Metcalf defeated Yoshida for the second time in nearly a year, and this time the prize was Yoshida's IBF bantamweight title. The mantis-like Metcalf stood her ground more often than was the case in their first meeting, and given the scores in her favor, her far higher work rate (69.6 punches per two-minute round to Yoshida's 43.2) and the fact she tied Yoshida in power connects (47) helped her over the finish line. That said, Yoshida's well-timed and forceful jabs (23.9 attempts/4.9 connects per round/21% accuracy compared to Metcalf's 37.2/1.7/5%) set up her more accurate power shots that connected with more impact. Yoshida finished the fight ahead 96-64 overall, 49-17 jabs, 30-16 body and 8-0-2 in the CompuBox round-by-round breakdown of total connects in a fight that saw the combatants separated by three or fewer total connects in four of the 10 rounds, rounds that might have gone to Metcalf due to the work rate advantage and her ability to keep Yoshida at arm's length for long periods, a sign of ring generalship. Yoshida, though, was more accurate in all phases (22%-9% overall, 21%-5% jabs, 24%-15% power). Scoring: 99-91, 98-92, 96-94 M.
