Inside The Numbers

Flores set the tone early, barreling into Scotney and winging punches — throwing 658 total (66 per round) to Scotney's 530 (53 per round), combining for 1,188 punches thrown. But Scotney was the sharper puncher, connecting on 45% of her power punch attempts and finishing with a 25-punch edge in power shots. Despite the output disparity, the fight was tight round to round: the two were separated by 4 or fewer landed punches in seven of ten rounds. The judges scored it 96-94 and 100-90 twice — all for Scotney.
