Inside The Numbers

Valle threw 165 more punches than Juarez on the night, but quantity didn't translate to quality — she connected on just 17% of her output, while the switch-hitting Juarez made her work count at a 28% clip, outlanding Valle by 22. Juarez punctuated her performance with a knockdown in the closing seconds of the final round. Two judges rewarded her for it; the third saw it differently, and Valle's 95-94 scorecard was offset by Juarez taking the other two — including one judge's lopsided 98-91 reading — to earn the decision.
